THROUGH WHICH YALE GAINED MOST GROUND AGAINST HARVARD.YALE WINS!

Harvard Team Is Overwhelmed in a Superb Football Game at New Haven by the Blue-Clad Warriors of Old Eli, Led by Capt. Chadwick.

Yale's Giant Guard Glass Tears Up Opposing Line and at Times Drags Half of Crimson Team Along with Him—Metcalf Makes 75-Yard Run for Touchdown.

FINAL SCORE:

YALE - - - - 23
HARVARD - - - - 0

(Special to The Evening World.)
YALE FIELD, NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 22.
The game began at 2:10. Harvard winning the toss and choosing the south goal with a ten mile breeze in her favor, Bowman kicked off to the Crimson's 1-yard line. Putnam caught the ball, but stumbled and only carried it fifteen yards. Putnam in two plunges gained eight yards through Yale's lines. Kernan punted to Harvard's 40-yard line.

Two attacks on Harvard's line by the Blue's backs failed to gain. A quarter-back kick and a fumble by Graydon lost Harvard 10 yards. Bowman was carried back on an attempted end run for 10 yards. Yale gained 10 yards through Harvard's center on a series of plunges by the Blue backs carrying the ball to the Crimson's 15-yard line. The game was fast and furious. In a circular wedge play Kinney carried the ball through Harvard to her 7-yard line. The Crimson center presents headed by Glass. Three more center plunges and Chadwick carried the ball over the line for a touchdown.

Score: Yale, 6; Harvard, 0. Bowman kicked the goal. The majority of Yale's gains were made between guard and tackle on both sides of the Cambridge players' line. Carl Marshall kicked off to Shevlin on Yale's 25-yard line, when he was thrown. Bowman punted to the center of the field. Two tackle-back plays led by Putnam gained five yards through the New Haven line. Graydon on a magnificent plunge went through Goss for five yards. Graydon continued his furious hammering at the Blue line until the ball was advanced to Yale's 40-yard line, when the Crimson forfeited the oval for holding. The Blue failed in two attacks on the Crimson line, kicked out to Kernan on his 30-yard line. Graydon and Kernan then settled down to hammer at the Blue line, but after gaining five yards the Yale line men dug in their toes and held for three downs, when Kernan kicked to Metcalf on Harvard's 10-yard line.

Metcalf's Great Play. Then after one unsuccessful attempt on the Crimson line one of the most sensational plays in football history was made when Goss opened up a hole through Shea and Barnard, and Metcalf shot through like a projectile and carried the Cambridge backs carried the ball 60 yards over the line.

The entire Harvard team tried madly after the Yale back but failed to gain on him until he had crossed the goal line. Bowman Kicked Goal. Bowman then made a fake kick, passing the ball to Hogan, who carried it through the entire Cambridge team for 34 yards.

Score—Yale, 12; Harvard, 0. For the next few minutes Harvard braced, and with the ball on Yale's 25-yard line held the New Haven men for three downs. Harvard continuing her splendid stand, got the ball, and Graydon and Kernan advanced it through the Blue's left wing five yards. Metcalf plunged and a five-yard hurdle by Graydon, and the Harvard eleven advanced the ball to Yale's 18-yard line. With the Blue's defense weakening, the Harvard backs plunged on to Yale's 8-yard line. Then Yale gripped the gridiron with tenacious feet and got the leather on her 7-yard line.

Harvard Gains, but Fumbles. Bowman then tried a fake kick and was shoved back to Yale's three-yard line. Bowman then kicked to Marshall on Yale's thirty-yard line. Putnam went around the Blue's right wing for eight yards. Kernan fumbled and lost the ball on his opponents' twenty-yard line, after gaining eight yards through the Crimson's line. Bowman kicked to Harvard's forty-five-yard line. On a fumble by Kernan in a trick play the Cambridge players were forced back eight yards, but kept the ball.

An attempt to turn the Blue's left wing lost the Crimson five more yards. Bowman was hurt, but after taking two minutes to recover, returned to play. Kernan punted to Yale's 40-yard line. Metcalf broke through a hole and the Crimson's left tackle and carried the ball fifteen yards. Score, First Half—Yale, 12; Harvard, 0. From the time the whistle blew in the first half the play was electric, the plays being made in such rapid succession as to almost defy the eye to follow them. Though Kernan and Graydon succeeded in making successive gains through the New Haven line, the Blue's defense, especially at center and guards was vastly superior to the Crimson. The Yale team displayed much greater speed than Harvard in getting to the play, and then followed up with concerted energy. As for Harvard, her teamwork was deplorable, most all the gains being made by the brilliant work of her backs. Bowditch and Mills, the Crimson ends, did finely with the result that not a single yard was gained around the Cambridge wings. In punting the two eleven seemed very evenly matched, though Bowman's work was a shade better than the kicking of Kernan.

The second half began without any changes in the Harvard line-up. For Yale Bowman went out and Vanderpool took his place. Kernan kicked off to Yale's thirty-five-yard line. In a mass play Chadwick went through the Crimson's left wing for ten yards. The giant Glass then opened a hole for Kinney, and he started down the gridiron with a clear field, carrying the oval thirty-five yards. When he was caught and downed by the Harvard team, a desperate stand, but the

ACTRESSES
IN A FIRE.

Blaze in a Thirty-eighth Street Flat Drives Tenants to Street and Viola Allen's Maid May Die.

SOME THRILLING RESCUES.

In a fire which completely destroyed a four-story flat building at No. 237 West Thirty-eighth street to-day, a former Alderman, several actresses and dress-makers and a number of men were rescued while overcome by smoke or heat, and thousands of people gathered and watched the survivors shiver on the streets in their singed night robes.

Viola Allen's maid is in Roosevelt Hospital and may die. Mrs. Walter Wilkins, mother of Odette Tyler, is severely burned about the face and hands. Her husband, Dr. Wilkins, is also painfully burned.

Mrs. Wilkins was lighting a gasoline stove in her apartment on the first floor when the tank exploded, scattering the flaming oil over the room. It was in attempting to extinguish the flames that Dr. Wilkins and his wife were burned.

Realizing that they were unable to check the fire, they ran through the house, alarming the other residents. When they reached the street Mrs. Wilkins remembered that she had failed to save her two pet dogs and her jewel case. Dr. Wilkins attempted to return for them, but was driven out by flames. As he was retreating one of the dogs jumped from a balcony and saved itself, and after the fire was out the other animal was found floating on an improvised raft in the water-filled cellar. Mrs. Wilkins was sent to Roosevelt Hospital, but remained there only a short time.

Close Call for Ex-Alderman.

Policemen Lane and Ulmer knew that ex-Alderman Vincent Goss was in a room on the fourth floor, which he has been occupying while his house next door is being renovated. It being impossible to get to the top floor through the fire, the policemen went to the roof of Goss's house and then crossed to the roof of the burning building, descending through a hatchway and rescued the former Alderman. Goss was asleep in bed and partially overcome by smoke. It was necessary to drag him to the roof and from there into his own home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Oakes Ross, on the second floor, were awakened by the firemen, and sought the street in their night robes. Mrs. Ross lost several thousand dollars' worth of jewels. To get out it was necessary for them to pass through the flaming hall, and both were burned and their garments partially destroyed. Mr. Ross is manager for Pain's Fireworks Company.

On the third floor, Miss Clara Dunn, a music teacher, was awakened by the screams from the people on the street below. She found the rooms filled with smoke and felt the heat in the hall. With remarkable pluck and fortitude she awakened her mother, Mrs. A. J. Dunn and their guest, Mrs. Funds, of Rochester, and led both of them downstairs and through the smoke and flames. All were slightly burned. They lost all of their possessions.

Jack Raffell, the baritone, climbed from his third-story window to the rear yard on a fire-escape, taking several women out of the building. His hands were burned and his face blistered. Sophia Agard, in charge of Viola Allen's wardrobe, sleeping on the top

STURGIS TO GO
IF CROKER DOES.

Mayor Low, Aroused by The Evening World's Exposure of Plot Against the Fire Chief, Tells Commissioner the Testimony Does Not Warrant Dismissal.

A wide split in the reform administration promises to follow whatever action Fire Commissioner Sturgis takes with relation to the charges against Chief Croker.

If the Commissioner adheres to his intentions he will dismiss the Chief from the force within a few days, and in this event Mayor Low will ask him to resign from the Commission.

And if he does not dismiss or humiliate Chief Croker he will be compelled to stand the onslaught of the Republican politicians who are behind the plot to make the department a cog in the local machine.

The astonishing exposures in The Evening World yesterday of the real motives underlying the persecution of Chief Croker have aroused the city and have evidently had the effect of stiffening the backbone of the Mayor, whose interest in the matter appears to have been of recent birth. Up to last Thursday night there was no outward opposition on the part of the Administration to the carrying out of the plan of Commissioner Sturgis to force Chief Croker out of the department.

Meeting at Mayor's Home. On that evening a conference was called at the residence of Mayor Low. There were present the Mayor, Commissioner Sturgis, Corporation Counsel George L. Rives and his assistants, Capt. A. F. Cosby and C. S. Whitman, who represented the Law Department at the trial of the Chief, ex-Fire Commissioner James R. Sheffield, who is counsel for the "Pinks," the organization of ex-Foreman James D. Clifford, Chief Croker's relentless foe, and who is "slated" to succeed Commissioner Sturgis; John C. Clark, the Mayor's legal adviser, and William Leary, Secretary of the Fire Department.

It developed at this conference, upon the admission of Commissioner Sturgis himself, that the only charges he could possibly consider proved out of the long line preferred against the Chief were that he failed to safeguard the Park Avenue Hotel and Seventy-first Regiment Armory fires improperly; that he allowed hose to go to the Polo Grounds and a lumber yard in Newton without collecting revenue for the same; that he forced out of the department or attempted to force out certain members opposed to his policy, and that he returned from his vacation when he learned of the plot against him and insisted upon taking charge of the department.

GEN. MILES AROUND ON A TRANSPORT

Steamer Fast on a Reef in the Philippines, but It Is Believed She Will Float Off.

MANILA, Nov. 22.—The United States transport Ingalls, with Gen. Miles on board, struck on a reef while entering the harbor of Le Gassi, Province of Albay, Southeast Luzon, to-day, and is still aground. She is not in any danger, however.

The weather is calm and it is expected that the steamer will float at the next high tide. Communication with the shore is maintained. If the Ingalls does not float at high water relief will be despatched to her from this city.

WILL BE WEDDED IN DEN OF LIONS.

Young Couple to Face Wild Beasts at Bostock's and There Be Joined in Marriage.

Talk about bearding the lion in his den! It will be done at Bostock's Animal Show on Monday evening next at 8:30 o'clock precisely.

The raison d'être is found in the fact that some days ago Mr. Bostock offered a bonus of $500 to any young couple who would consent to be married in his famous den of lions.

The announcement brought responses from half a dozen engaged couples, and all seemed serene for a sensational marriage amid the lions, but the wily Mr. Bostock forgot one important particular—the officiating clergyman. The various couples were willing, but the minister was minus.

Mr. Bostock advertised in the newspapers for a clergyman. A well-known congregational minister of the city has offered his services, and the ceremony will take place.

He stipulated that his name shall be made known until after his Sunday services, as his congregation might like objections. The names of the couple, however, are known. They are Harry Horne, of One Hundred and Ninetieth street and the Bronx, and Theresa Berg, of East Thirtieth street. Both are Danes. The reason for the selection is simple. The dangerous of the young people who applied as candidates for the lion's den wedding saw the lions perform and quit.

Harry and Theresa will no doubt have a large audience on Monday evening, and also an experience to hand down to their posterity.

Special to The Evening World. BENNINGS RACE TRACK, Nov. 22.—One of the best cards of the meeting was on at the track this afternoon and it seemed as if nearly the whole of the city of Washington had turned out to enjoy a good afternoon's sport.

The renewal of the hunters' steeplechase, which furnished such a fine race last week, was the feature that most interested Washingtonians. Jumping races are very popular in this part of the country.

The race that appealed to the regulars, however, was a dash of a mile and 100 yards, which brought about a meeting between Harry New, The Huguenot, Cameron, Syrin, Lux Costa and other very fast milers. This promised a cracking good contest. There was also another very good race at six furlongs, a handicap for two-year-olds.

The track was in excellent condition once more, having received a thorough rolling and harrowing this morning.

The weather was a bit raw and threatening, but pleasant enough nevertheless for racing purposes.
